Description

In 1995 when Dominique Perrault, the young architect finished the 4 glass towers, known as the Bibliotheque Francois Mitterand (french national library BNF) little did he know that the mayor of Paris, on the conservative right at the time, had negotiated secretly with Marin Karmitz (MK2 proprietor ) a tiny parcel of land in which he was allowed to build a cinema. Hence began the ideological battle between the book and the film. This tiny detail creating an incident in the microcosmic political circles in Paris.
