Description

I make paintings that utilise selected personal imagery as vehicles to arrive at larger concerns and moods in contemporary life. By casting an abstracted lens on the mundane detritus of the everyday, I try to capture the durational texture of our daily life. Images are loaded with references to figures, animals, memories, photography, toys, food, the past etc. This network I propose offers the viewer a glimpse of a domestic space which is designed to act as a visual catalyst where they can stage their own narrative.
